Useless Facts & Comments

Like some Christians, "Sober Sue" never smiled. She was put on stage and an offer was made to give anyone $1,000 if they could make Sue smile. No one ever did. Her facial muscles were paralyzed.

Why are there more erythrophobes than there used to be? (People who fear to blush.)

Belgians once tried to use cats to deliver mail, but it didn't work.

Don't forget to pray before going to sleep. The odds of dying by falling out of bed are 2 in 1,000,000.

Mediterranean means "middle of the world."

Why can't we simply believe ...

what God says? Because it is a part of our depraved natures to disbelieve. Why do we believe what the evolutionary astrophysicist tells us about the number of stars, but we don't believe the "wet paint" sign until we've touched the paint?

In the morning of September 12, 1939, a man in West Hampton Beach, New York, received a barometer in the mail. The needle was stuck on "hurricane." Disgusted, and thinking it was defective, he marched back to the Post Office and mailed the instrument back to the store from which he had purchased it. As he returned toward home the wind came up, and when he reached the street where he lived, his home was gone. – Copied

Praise God and the torpedoes.

Roy Dikkers was a seaman on board a tanker during World War II. When a German torpedo struck and exploded, he found himself trapped in a compartment below deck. A few minutes later a second torpedo exploded, releasing him from certain death. Racing on deck he found sea around the floundering vessel ablaze with oil fires. He didn't have to make the fateful decision whether to stay with the sinking ship or risk the fiery sea, because a third torpedo blew him over the fires and beyond the oil slick. Landing near a raft, he crawled aboard and was found by a Norwegian freighter three days later.

Was Dikkers a lucky man or did God preserve him? – adapted was a scholar of massive learning. At the age of twenty-five he could read the New Testament in nine different languages. He could repeat from memory a Hebrew translation of the entire New Testament without missing a single syllable. He could do the same thing with large portions of the Old Testament also. He says: "For forty-five years continuously since I left college I have devoted myself to the one great study of the Old Testament in all its languages, in all its archaeology, in all its translations, and as far as possible everything bearing upon its text and history." He was acquainted with about forty-five languages and dialects. He probably knew more about the Old Testament and everything connected with it than did all the destructive critics put together.

Professor Wilson, having long and thoroughly examined the evidence on which the destructive critics base their conclusions, found that it was utterly worthless. Concerning the evidence for the orthodox position he writes: "The evidence in our possession has convinced me that 'at sundry times and in divers manners, God spoke unto our fathers through the prophets,' and that the Old Testament in Hebrew, 'being immediately inspired by God,' has 'by His singular care and providence been kept pure in all ages.'"

Dr. Wilson held the highest regard for the Masoretic Text; namely, the Old Testament canon of thirty-nine books which, through the centuries, was transcribed with meticulous accuracy by the Masoretes. These scholars were chosen with the greatest care by the Jewish nation to keep pure and intact the sacred Scriptures given to them by God in the beginning. And it is the Masoretic text which forms part of the Textus Receptus or the Received Text which is the source of the King James Bible.

I dislike very much ...

their hymns [those of his own Anglican Church], which I considered to be fifth-rate poems set to sixth-rate music. But as I went on I saw the great merit of it... I realized that the hymns (which were just sixth-rate music) were, nevertheless, being sung with devotion and benefit by an old saint in elastic-side boots in the opposite pew, and when I realized that I wasn't fit to clean those boots. It got me out of my solitary conceit.

After debuting at number ...

three at the box office ... and taking in $10 million ... at number four in the nation, The Shack is causing more and more evangelical leaders to warn Americans that the movie designed to attract Christians is a "theological disaster." Gaining popularity from being based on the best-selling novel by William P. Young donning the same title, The Shack is reportedly one of the most successful faith-based films to hit the big screen in recent years – a trend that is making many Christian leaders concerned about its reportedly false interpretation of the Gospel.

Ask the average person ...

on the street how many abortions take place in America each year, and it is likely that few will know the answer. The average annual number of abortions in America currently is just under one million – a staggering number that tends to surprise and shock people.

But abortion numbers in the U.S. are small compared to those in China. Every year more unborn babies are killed in abortions in China ... than anywhere else in the world. Breitbart News reports that according to Chinese government data, more than 63,000 unborn babies are killed in abortions every single day in China.
